Asia-Pacific Institute of Management, New Delhi Industry Council

1. Introduction

Academia-Industry relationship is interactive and collaborative in nature. The basis of this relationship lies in ensuring mutual respect for each other's role and acknowledging each other's contributions in accomplishing certain reciprocally beneficial purposes and missions. Academia-industry interactions are a system that requires active and collaborative participations of all the stakeholders.

Management education requires myriad of inputs from various industrial sectors and functional areas of management. It makes the curriculum and pedagogy more relevant in developing business acumen, agility and leadership among management graduates so that they can face challenges of the business world. Owing to advancement in technology, business environments as well as workplaces are in unceasing flux, therefore, the curriculum of a B-School must emphasize upon managing the technology driven innovations/changes. Being cognizant of student needs and the challenges they have to face in future, the Asia-Pacific Institute of Management (AIM), New Delhi has decided to constitute an industry council. The council will meet once every calendar quarter to plan and execute structured events, initiate and conduct projects to transform and modernize existing educational offerings and facilitate learning and research at AIM, New Delhi. The council will play a pivotal role in strengthening the bridge between industry and academia.

2. Objectives of Industry Council

- a. To ensure that the curriculum is academically rigorous and industry relevant.
- b. To enhance the industry interface of the institute by referring the experts from various sectors of the industry for Guest Lectures & professional interaction with students and suggest measures to enhance the Centre of Innovation and Entrepreneurship.
- c. To help the institute to connect with HR leaders of reputed companies for quality in Summer Internship and final placements
- d. To suggest measures to enhance Alumni relationship and Alumni Award recommendations.
- e. To collaborate with Industry professionals for case study demonstration or exposure to the students.
- f. To share the relevant projects from industries on which faculty and students can work and collaborate with industry professionals for state-of-art research in the field of management.
- g. To suggest measures to enhance the presence of the Institute at National and International level.
- h. To recommend the areas of FDPs and MDPs to be conducted by the Institute.
- i. To recommend the Institutions from where networking of the Institute could be enhanced for conducting Industry relevant certifications
- j. To help the institute for effective representation in various professional groups of the Industries like FICCI, CII, NASSCOM, PHD Chamber of Commerce, NHRDN etc.

3. Industry Council Framework

The Industry Council comprises of the following framework components:

- a. The industry council consists of industry honchos not below Vice President and/ or above.
